UTILITIES PROBE CONTINUES AFTER LENGTHY HEARINGS

Representatives of Third Class
Cities to Appear
Today

MIGHT BE REPETITION

President of Penna. Ass'n. of Boroughs Heads The Complaints

HARRISBURG, Mar. 12.—(INS)— Both Senate and House committees investigating the public utilities and the public service commission today prepared to resume sessions, after long-drawn-out hearings yesterday.

Before the house committee representatives of third class cities were to appear, to air any grievances against the utilities of the commission, while the senate probe body prepared to quiz Albert M. Greenfield, Philadelphia banker and real estate operator, on the sale of the Quaker City Cab Company to the Philadelphia Rapid Transit.

Today's session of the house committee, it was indicated, might be a repetition of yesterday's late session, when representatives of half a hundred boroughs of the state appeared and for nearly four hours paraded their complaints against the utilities and the commission.

Thomas S. Chrostwaite, of Hanover, president of the Pennsylvania Association of boroughs, headed the complaints. He voiced not only the general complaints of the association, but gave a detailed statement concerning the Hanover-McSherrytown Water Company, whose water supply failed last summer. Chrostwaite said the company's properties had never been valued and that it had bonds outstanding worth twice the value of its property.

Chrostwaite also voiced the disapproval of the boroughs against the public service commission practice which permits a utility to increase rates on 30 days' notice to the commission.

He said also the association objects to cost of carrying complaints to the commission.

Individual borough representatives who appeared before the committee, generally to tell of increased rates of difficulty of obtaining what they considered adequate service included H.
D. Herbert, Conshohocken, George
Dickey, Brackenridge, J. Edgar Smith,
Latrobe, T. E. Gibson, Scottsdale, D. K.
Lockhard, Columbia, H. E. Fetterhoff,
Lewistown, and Sterling Cramer, East Stroudsburg.

The Allegheny Valley Improvement
Association filed a statement advocating repeal of the public service commission law or amendment of the act to provide confirmation of commissioners by the house, rather than by the senate.

The session of the senate committee today, it was indicated, would be quieter than yesterday's when John R.
Farr, Scranton registration commissioner, was forcibly removed from the witness stand for refusal to name a "Scranton banker" from whom he said he had obtained advance information on the decision of the public service commission in the Scranton-Springbrook Water Company rate case.

ner followed by a vaudeville entertainment and dancing.

Many persons prominent in both Legion and Voiture circles will be in charge of the affair, is very much pleased with the manner in which he membership cards are being issued it is going to be a banner year.

Any voyageur not attending the spring frolic is going to miss a treat.

Bristol Folks Today Recall The Blizzard of 1888

Many of the older residents of Bristol today recall the blizzard of '88, when high winds and heavy snow
"tied up" this borough just 43 years ago today.

The blizzard, one of the worst in the history of this section, followed a steady rain which commenced on a Sunday morning. Sometime during Sunday night, it is stated, the wind changed, and a severe snowstorm set in. The wind blew a gale, and the snow-fall continued.

The following morning high drifts were to be seen, some reaching 10 to 15 feet in height.

Railroad traffic was blocked; and wires of the telegraph and telephone companies were torn down. For a period of about three days the town was cut off from outside communication.

JEALOUSY BLAMED FOR MAN'S MURDER

Wife of Nixon-Nirdlinger Says
Spouse Was Always
Accusing Her

DEFENDS CHARACTER

NICE, France, Mar. 12.—(INS)—
Jealousy of a husband nearly 30 years older than herself was blamed today for the fatal shooting of Frederick G.
Nixon-Nirdlinger, New York and Philadelphia theatre magnate, in a statement said by police to have been made by Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger, held here without formal charges pending further investigation into the killing.

Nixon-Nirdlinger was shot to death in his villa on the fashionable promenade Des Anglais last night after an allegedly violent quarrel with his wife.
She is the former Charlotte Isabel Nash, who won international recognition as a beauty in the Atlantic City pulpititude pageant in 1922, entering as "Miss St. Louis."

According to police, Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger said in her statement that she shot her husband in self-defense.

"My husband is 54 years old and I am 25," she was quoted by the authorities as saying. "He was terribly jealous, always accusing me of infidelity."

"I was reading an Italian newspaper when my husband tore it from me, shouting that I was trying to learn Italian because I had an Italian lover.
That is entirely untrue.

"I ran into another room, but he rushed in after me and seized me by the throat. Almost strangled, I drew a revolver from under a pillow and shot in self-defense."

Investigators of the tragedy said that four shots were fired, one of them passing through the heart of the theatre magnate.

The fatal shots shattered a romance that caught world interest when it first blossomed in the fading summer of 1923. It started when Charlotte Nash, of the admirable dimples, walked down the Atlantic City boardwalk as St. Louis' candidate for beauty honors in the international pageant, whose guiding genius was Nixon-Nirdlinger.

She won first prize in the boardwalk parade, captured fourth place in the international pulpitude contest, and received the coveted cup from the theatre man known in Philadelphia and Baltimore simply as Nirdlinger.

A Cinderella dream unfolded from a girl's day dreams into reality, for Nirdlinger enrolled her in the fashionable National Park Seminary at Forest Glen, Maryland, with orders that she be molded into "the perfect lady."

The Cinderella pattern of the story was never broken, for in February of 1924, Charlotte Nash and her benefactor were married in Hagerstown, Md., and went abroad for their honeymoon.

But the romance soon met with complications, and there were reports of frequent quarrels. Nixon-Nirdlinger had already been married twice, and his final divorce decree from his second wife was still pending. In 1909, after having been married fourteen years, to Teresa Burke, mother of his two sons, she divorced him in Philadelphia. She now lives in Arizona or California. Laura McKenna of Atlantic City became his second wife, and she secured her final papers in Paris in 1925.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Painting of C. A. Sprickler, Morrisville, is Accepted for Annual Exhibition of National Academy of Design, New York
—Suit Started for Alleged Damages at Doylestown

C. A. Sprickler, of the Lower Ferry Road, Morrisville, has won a distinct honor in the art world with the acceptance of one of his newest paintings at the annual exhibition of the National Academy of Design in New York. The show will be held at the galleries of the American Fine Arts Society in West 57th Street.

Mr. Sprickler's canvas at the National Academy is entitled, "Siesta Time—Taos Pueblo," and is a subject caught by the artist while on a visit to New Mexico. The late Frank G. Applegate was an intimate friend of Mr. Sprickler, and it was while vacationing at the latter's New Mexico home that the pueblo subject caught the painter's fancy.

Other pictures by Mr. Sprickler are being shown at the Academy of the Fine Arts, and at the Art Club annual exhibitions, in Philadelphia. Canvases of the Morrisville artist are also to be seen at the New Hope galleries.

Miss Nathilla J. Albertson and her parents, Bessie and Harold Albertson, of 1526 West Euclid avenue, Philadelphia, have entered a $1750 damage suit against William Miller, of 1617 Turner street, Allentown, in the Court of Common Pleas, Doylestown.

It is alleged that on July 28, 1929, the plaintiff, Nathilla Albertson, was an occupant in an automobile driven by Mrs. Nathilla Thorbert, on South Main street, Doylestown. William Miller, the defendant, was also operating his car in the same direction a short distance ahead of the car in which the Albertsons were riding. As the defendant, Miller, approached the intersection of South Main and Ashland streets, he stopped his car suddenly, without giving any warning to the traffic following him and traveling in the same direction of his intention to stop. When he stopped at the intersection, the Albertson's car crashed into Miller's car and seriously injured

Miss Albertson, it is alleged.

Miss Albertson avers that she sustained injuries and received a severe blow upon her neck, injuring her larynx and other muscles and organs of her throat.

A play, "Miss Perkins' Last Engagement," will be presented by the choir of the Grace Methodist Church in their church lecture room in Morrisville, three nights on March 18, 19 and 20.
The play is a three-act comedy taking place in a school room. Mrs. Frank Coom and Chester Waite are taking the leading roles.

The cast includes: Mrs. Frank Coom
as Miss Jerusha Ann Perkins; Chester Waite as Elder James Lee, a prominent citizen; George Ryan as Josh. B.
Lee, school director; Warren Winder-

BENSALEM VICTORS IN DEBATING CONTEST

Win Over New Hope Team and Get Decision by 3 to 0 Vote

OTHER SCHOOL NEWS

BENSALEM TOWNSHIP HIGH SCHOOL, CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Mar. 12.—There was another debate at the Bensalem township high school on Friday, the teams being Bensalem and New Hope. The chairman of the debate was the Reverend Arthur Gibson, of the Eddington Episcopal Church.
The judges were W. F. Kines, principal of the Bristol Township Schools, F.
Eugene Klinger, principal of the Lower Moreland high school, G. E. Lanks, head of the Social Science Department of the Jenkintown high school.

The question was: "Resolved, that modern advertising is detrimental to the best interests of society." The order of speakers was as follows:—
Affirmative, (Bensalem): Alma Mac-Kenzie, Axel Klenzorg, (captain); Harry Seltzer, William McKenna, alternate.

Negative, (New Hope): Maude Funk, (captain); Thelma Dillon, William Cryer, Edna Hutchinson, alternate.

Following the main speeches of the debate there was a ten minute intermission for the preparation of rebuttal speeches. During this time the student body was entertained by Miss June Clifford who sang a vocal solo entitled, "To a Hill Top," and also by a piano trio composed of Dorothea Wenner, Betty Lathrop, and Ethel
Hartman who played "Spanish Dance." After these wonderful selections had been rendered and enjoyed by all, the rebuttal speeches were given. The order of the speakers was as follows:—

New Hope: William Cryer, Thelma Dillon, Maude Funk.

Bensalem: Harry Seltzer, Alma Mackenzie, Axel Klenzorg.

Following the rebuttal there was singing by the student body entitled,
"A Merry Heart." After opening the sealed ballots in the presence of the two captains the decision was rendered as a 3 to 0 victory for Bensalem.

The winners of the spelling contest that was held at Bensalem last Tuesday were as follows: First place, Grace Smith, 31; second place, Emilie fine loving cup. The winner will also represent Bensalem in the Pierce

School Contest to be held Saturday, March 14th, at the Pierce School of Business Administration in Philadelphia. After the contest is over all of the entrants will be given a turkey dinner.

SCOUT LEADERS SPEND WEEK-END AT CAMP

Have Enjoyable Time Despite Storm and Mud at Buccou

JOVIAL FELLOWSHIP

Spirit, one hundred per cent! Fun, one hundred per cent! Mud, one hundred per cent! And happy times lingered on. Through the nasty rain, and half of this past week end 45 leaders spent a happy, instructive Saturday and Sunday together in the Good Times Hall at the Boy Scout Camp, Buccou. Though the rains descended and floods of water and mud came,
there was no retarding of the spirit that developed in the group. Over half of the men were present at 3.30 when the course started Saturday afternoon at the call of the director, and most of the others arrived later in the afternoon, with a few appearing Sunday morning.

Memories of the jovial fellowship, and all-round friendly cordiality of president "Tom" Stockham will long be remembered. President "Tom" was present from the opening bell until the closing gong struck; and with Max Koplin, chairman of the New-portville troop committee, there were few minutes when the entire group was not indulging in hearty laughs.
In fact, several of the men suffered from headaches, and slight attacks of indigestion as a result of the clever humor and stunts provided by the above pair.

Hearty meals were enjoyed, and Saturday supper, and Sunday morning breakfast were by divisional groups under each of the assistant course directors Robert A. Perry and W. Fred Hauser. Sunday dinner was county fellowship gathering with president Stockham as toastmaster.

Chapel on Sunday preceded the fellowship dinner, and was led by Mr.
Stockham. Songs were sung under the direction of Scoutmaster Walter V. Rutherford; Scripture was read by Scoutmaster John C. Johnson, of Bristol; prayer was rendered by deputy commissioner Arthur W. Osborne, of Riegelsville; and president Stockham spoke on "the relation of man to the Universe and God."

Regional Scout Executive Roy F.
Seymour arrived in the afternoon, and spent all evening with the group. His talk on "Scouting Objectives, and Boys" around the fireplace drove home many points of needed emphasis in leadership of boys, his illustrations of the solving of problems of boy work being done by other councils were helpful, and a number will soon be used by the interested listeners.

Deputy Scout executive H. M. Fair-cett of the Delaware and Montgomery Counties Council presented a topic on "The Patrol Unit in Scouting." His

STATE NEWS OF GENERAL INTEREST

LOCK HAVEN, Mar. 12.—Shops of the New York Central Railroad, at Avis, near here, will become the scene of bustling activity March 15, when transfer of workmen is completed from the Depew, N. Y., shops of the road.

The Depew shops have been closed and workmen are being transferred to Avis where work formerly done at the New York state plant will be performed in future.

LANCASTER, Mar. 12.—A fresh-man's paradise.

That will be a pretty fair description of Franklin-Marshall College here when classes resume next fall.

For all yearling rules have been banished by the student senate and freshmen in future will be treated more or less like human beings and less like an affliction.

Fresh will still wear the first year
"dink," the blue cap signifying their verdancy, the green tie and the identification tag.

But they may have all the dates they want; they will be allowed to walk on the campus grass; and they will not have to carry matches for upper-classmen. The last, in the eyes of present yearlings, is the greatest blessing conferred on the incoming crop.

The more or less antiquated freshmen rules were dropped because of frequent clashes between first year men and upper-classmen and between students and police when the campus battles became too strenuous.

PITTSBURGH, Mar. 12.—Revival of "war gardens" as a means of lessening unemployment has been suggested here by Mrs. J. M. Phillips, state chairman of the American Home Depart-

Mrs. Phillips said the revival would mean an easy supply of fresh vegetables for the needy and would provide wholesome outdoor activity for growing youth.

URBAN-RURAL CONFLICT

The internal war that rumbles along from year to year in the United States is a very old war. It is as old as the oldest of the republic's frontiers and older than Congress, where it usually manifests itself.

It is, in fact, older than the government. Its first skirmishes were fought during the shaping of the constitution, when the plantations of the South clashed with the shipping interests and infant industries of the Northern seaboard. There were sectional fears and jealousies then, just as there are today. The North of that far away era watched the South with misgivings. The South watched the North with mistrust.

The country grew. The "old frontier" east of the mountains gave way to other and newer frontiers. Andrew Jackson raised the standard of political revolt against the moneyed and more conservative East. These battle lines, drawn in that struggle of nearly a century ago, can still be traced upon the political map of the United States.

The conflict takes various forms but its fundamentals remain much the same. It is a struggle, in one way or another, between the city and the country; between industrialism and agriculture.

It is this struggle that so long delayed reapportionment in Congress and is delaying reapportionment of representation in legislatures of states where the balance of population has swung over to the cities. It is constantly dividing urban and rural members of Congress and state legislatures against each other on questions of policy and public expenditure.

When will peace be declared? When the nation becomes 100 per cent urban and industrial or 100 per cent rural and agricultural.

A PROBLEM FOR EINSTEIN

One of those items that make municipal government a fascinating study is the now popular practice in cities and towns of forbidding parking on the streets during the hours when there is the least traffic while permitting limited parking during the rush hours of the day.

The peak load of traffic is reached in the afternoon, and it dwindles steadily until it reaches its lowest ebb between midnight and dawn. But it is usually between midnight and dawn that all parking is prohibited.

Obviously the philosophy back of such regulations is that as long as the streets are needed for traffic, it is all right to use them for parking; but as soon as they are not needed for traffic, it becomes illegal to use them for parking.

Still, the public is constantly assured that the primary object in view in constructing the streets was to make the movement of traffic possible, and that all other uses must be subordinated to this. Perhaps Professor Einstein could reconcile this apparent contradiction, but lesser brains cannot be expected to cope with it.

Love may be blind, but it can hear a husband complain about the cooking.

To remedy the divorce evil, how would it be to take the alimony out of it?

"MURDER AT EAGLE'S NEST"

By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

"Bim" Martin, young newspaper reporter and her fiance, Walter Vance, assistant police chief, are baffled by the murder of Baroness von Wiese at Eagle's Nest and the theft of her jewels. The outstanding suspects are the butler, who denies receiving a note from the Baroness, her maid with whom she quarreled, and Mary Frost, whose shawl was wrapped around the body. Mary left the party with her husband, Ted, returning alone, later, for the shawl. According to the maid, Laura Allan had borrowed it. Laura claims she saw Mary enter the garden wearing the shawl. Bim feels that Mary is shielding Ted who lived with the Baroness. A stone from a man's ring is found in the garden.

CHAPTER XIX.

THE young man placed a slender, temperamental-looking hand, badly stained with nicotine, upon either side of Bim's typewriter, and continued to grin down at her in the friendliest, most comradely way imaginable.

He was almost too handsome, she decided in that instant of confused surprise. His features were regular and clear-cut, and there was a suggestion of sideburns to point up his profile. He had tossed down his hat and his hair was sleek and shining, like Ted Frost's, but there would, she saw, be a wave in it if he were inclined to allow it. Still there was nothing really of the movie-idol about him; a certain careless unself-consciousness and a singularly alert intelligence saved him from this.

"Well!" Bim brought out after a rather long moment of staring. He laughed and offered to shake hands. "I'm Carey," he announced. "Greetings, sob-sister." "Not—not Carl Carey?" Her hand went limp in his as she considered this possibility, and he laughed again.

Diplomacy Plus

"The same Carl Carey—New York Planet—at your service." He made a low bow and winked in a manner that made her laugh as she suddenly lost herself in the metropolitan press star. "All of which," he continued, "goes to show that it's an ill wind—and so on." For, says I to myself when I drew this von Wiese case for assignment, "wee-ee-ee!" But now that I've seen the town and its citizens—some of them—I don't care if I never got back to Park Row."

Bim did not pretend to misunderstand him. There was an easy good-fellowship about young Carey which delighted her and his gaiety was infectious. She found her spirit soaring.

"Thanks," she murmured. Nice of you to call on Dad and I. We're the Banner, you know."

"Um." He offered her a cigarette which she refused to his evident astonishment, and took one himself. "You're Miss Martin? I've seen your stuff."

Bim knew this for a lie but it was such a small, such a diplomatic lie that she didn't mind in the least. Well, I know yours, Mr. Carey. It's wonderful."

"Think so?" Well, listen! Can't we step out for a pot of tea somewhere? Sort of get acquainted and talk things over as one journalist to another, so to speak?"

The young man continued to grin at Bim in the friendliest way imaginable.

She motioned him to old Tom's creaky swivel chair and turned back to her typewriter. It was not so easy to write now, however, with his amused eyes watching and she was glad when old Tom returned and insisted upon showing Carey the presses, droning away all the while about the beauty and wonders of Kingcliffe and the calamity which had befallen the town.

In the Maple Leaf Tea Room with a softly shaded light between herself and Carey, Bim told him about the murder, relating, however, only that part of the story which would appear in the Banner. But this appeared to be enough to set him speculating. He took from his pocket a roll of copy paper and a pencil and wrote out a list of names which he headed "suspects."

"But," Bim objected, "You've got everybody down—everybody that was at the dinner last night excepting myself—and that's silly."

"Wrong again, baby. You're too close to it to get the correct slant. I don't know any of these people and so I can suspect them all."

"Still it's terrible to go on the theory that everyone is guilty until proved innocent."

"Why terrible? Let's see now; here's the Hardys and the Baron—they're pretty well out of it, for the moment anyway. We'll cross them off the list. Well, then, there's Frost. Used to hang around Broadway a lot; a fast stepper. Who's he running with now?"

No Other Woman

"Of all the outrageous questions! Mr. Frost doesn't run with anyone, Mr. Carey. He has a perfectly wonderful wife."

"What's that got to do with it? We'll put an X down here after his name; that means a gal. You say he's on good terms with his wife?" Carey asked suggestively.

"Are you implying for one instant, Mr. Carl Carey, that Ted wanted to get Mary Frost out of the way? Bim flung this across the tea cups, hot with anger.

"Why all the shouting? Somebody took a shot at Mary Frost's shawl, seems as though. . . Why the commotion? What do you know? Better tell or papa spank."

She said, "I don't know anything," in a dejected, quiet way. The possibility he had suggested was, of course, utterly wild; yet one unacquainted with Ted and Mary Frost—one like Carey or even Reynolds perhaps—might think of it. Might even think and think until something like a case was built up. After all, Ted had refused to be questioned and Mary had not told the truth. Poor Mary—was her love for Ted about to plunge her into trouble and disgrace? What an injustice—what an incredible thing that would be!

Carey's laughing, intelligent eyes were watching Bim and she managed a smile. "You may as well get on," she told him, "because you haven't got very far yet."

"Says you. How about the Allan lady?"

"Nothing about her. She's not one of the crowd really; she just pals around with them some, though I don't think she likes them much."

"Hah, woman of mystery. We'll do a little snoopin' through her private life later on."

"But she hasn't any private life, Mr. Carey. Laura Allan is the most conservative person. Why, she's almost too proper."

"Learn to say 'Carl' baby. It has a nice sound." He grinned engagingly and Bim found herself blushing. "And don't be too sure about private lives. You'd be surprised. This artist Baird—I suppose he's Rossiter Baird? Saw some of his stuff in Paris a year or two back."

As I recall—yes—no—yes, she was. Your friend the Baroness was making whoopee up and down the Riviera about that time. I wonder, did Baird cross her trail? In other words, had they met before last night?"

"Why—why, I hadn't thought—"

"Course you hadn't. That's what friendship does to you. All right we'll let Baird's name stand. And Trent and his wife—I suppose neither of them would have potted the beautiful Baroness?"

"Certainly not. Why would they?" But Bim was growing too confused to be as vigorous in defense of her friends as she had been.

"Who shall say?" Cary drawled. "Murder, my child, are motivated by cupidity, revenge, or fear—and this one may have sprung from any of those though at first glance it looks like cupidity, seeing the jewels are missing, in which case the mystery won't be a mystery long. However, comma, we'll guess again just in case."

The Strange Case of the Young Wife Who Aired in Court Her Objections to Motherhood, Causes Miss Black to Lament This Modern "Tell All" Philosophy

By WINIFRED BLACK

HAS a husband the right to leave his wife because she refuses to bear children? The high courts of New York have just decided that the husband has no such right.

The woman in this particular instance, a test case, is a young woman of twenty-three. She is pretty, intelligent and she has a good job.

She doesn't want children and she gives a good many perfectly plain reasons for her feelings in the matter.

The young woman says she does not like children, she does not understand them, they bore her, they bother her.

Furthermore, says the young woman, she likes her job, and, if she had children, she'd have to give up that job. She thinks she makes a much better success as a stenographer than she would as a mother. So she has just come out in plain English and told her husband that she does not intend to have children. No matter what he thinks or what he wishes.

And the husband—what did he do about it? The husband went out and got an attorney and brought suit for annulment.

Whereupon the young wife left her husband, retained an attorney and fought the suit. The case was brought before the Supreme Court of New York, which handed down the decision that a woman had a perfect right to refuse motherhood, and that her husband could not obtain a legal separation from her on such grounds.

(When) And there are people alive today who say that the times are really not changing at all.

Ten years ago, such a decision would have been unthinkable. Fifty years ago, a woman's only legal status depended entirely upon her husband.

What a strange case and what strange people. The woman didn't want a family and the man didn't want a family, why in the world didn't the woman go home to mama and let her husband sue her for desertion and marry another woman. One who had different ideas about husbands, children, home and mother.

If she doesn't want to be a mother to this man's children, why does she want to live with the man?

Can you understand that? And who on earth is this man who is so anxious to have a family of children that he will try to compel his wife to become an unwilling mother, even if he has to drag her into court and tell it to the world?

Is there no longer any such thing as privacy? Must the curtain be rolled up so that every passer-by can look in at the window and see and hear everything that happens in a private home?

Must the whole world listen in on everything, everywhere, all the time? Is there no such thing as adjustment outside the courts?

Tut, tut, my dear, if you feel that way about children, you had no business to marry and you have no business to stay married—unless your husband feels the same way about it.

What kind of a wife are you, anyway, and what kind of a husband can he possibly be? The whole thing sounds like something out of an expurgated Alice-in-Wonderland, but I do believe the White Rabbit, who was such a personage in that most enchanting tale, would have had more delicacy and more common sense than to ask a judge in the Supreme Court to settle such a purely personal matter as that.

Tell it to Sweeney get out an extra, put it in the headlines, make a moving picture of it, have someone sing about it over the radio. That's the new idea.

Somehow it seems just a little out of taste to me.

paper on the subject was a complete analysis of successful methods, and suitable procedure that one should follow. Dr. Barclay S. Fuhrman, of Flemington, N. J., who serves as consulting physician at Buccoo during the summer season gave a general talk on first aid principles, and concluded with a triangular bandage demonstration which was participated in by the entire group. Field department director Carl F. Green, of Philadelphia, Council spoke on "The Troop Committee." Mr. Green made such a splendid presentation that his period was extended for half an hour. A complete display of available literature that was printed concerning various Leadership problems as well as handbooks, and some equipment were conveniently arranged in one corner of Good Times Hall. Free periods were frequently scheduled so that the group could become acquainted and games were started during this time. The marshmallow toast, and the fun that followed the evening campfire will long be remembered.

Following Saturday supper humorous stories, and experiences were told by county Scout commissioner William Burgess, council president Thomas B. Stockham, and regional executive Roy F. Seymour.

Goitre Not A Disease

Milwaukee Doctor Makes Remarkable Discovery

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—It has been brought to light by scientific research that goitre is not a disease and is not to be treated as such. Dr. A. A. Rock, Dept. A-15, Box 737, Milwaukee, Wis., a prominent goitre specialist for over 24 years, has perfected a different method of treatment for his patients that has proved remarkably successful. This same method is now being used for a home treatment of goitre cases all over the country with astonishing results. The doctor states that goitre is a condition which grows worse with neglect and recommends immediate attention no matter how small the growth may appear. He strongly opposes needless operations. Dr. Rock is the author of a book that tells in a simple way about treating goitre at home. He has published this book at his own expense and will send a copy free to anyone interested. is some doubt as to whether the township auditors have the right to surcharge expenditures further back than the beginning of the present school year, in June, 1930.

John M. Frantzen, of Fair Hill, chairman of the committee in charge of a chicken supper served in Hilltown Hall, last Saturday night, to raise further funds to carry on the citizens' fight, reported that affair had netted $216.22. Freewill contributions of $62 additional were reported by volunteer solicitors. Attorney H. E. Grim, of Perkasie, has been paid $225 in full for his prior services in the ouster suit. It was stated, and engaged anew for the next legal drive, the fighting farmers facing the future with a war fund of over $250.

Thanks to the association were tendered Frantzen and his associates, and the meeting ordered publication of an appreciation of the "splendid co-operation" given by Hilltown citizens generally.

Taxpayers scheduled their next session for Monday night, March 23, four days prior to the time designated by Hilltown board to receive building bids at Blooming Glen. Arrangements may be made for en masse attendance by citizens at the board's session to voice their views.

ADVICE TO GIRLS by Nancy Lee

DEAR NANCY LEE: I am a young girl sixteen years of age. I am boarding with a very refined family and find it most comfortable with the exception of the gentleman of the house. He has been acting rather peculiar. I think he is trying to make love to me. Please, let me know what I should do or say to him, without losing his wife's friendship?

LONELY BABE: Perhaps it would be best for you to write to your parents and tell them that you would like to return home or, if you cannot do that, perhaps you could ask them to give you permission to board elsewhere. Failing that, isn't there a minister to whom you could talk? You could tactfully indicate that you would like to live elsewhere without deliberately telling the reason. You must act, or else there may be misunderstandings and unpleasantness to contend with.

DEAR NANCY LEE: I am coming to you for advice. I am 24, and have been going with a girl 20 for almost two years. We were engaged. One day one of her former sweethearts came back. Now she wants to postpone our engagement. We had a few arguments but I still love her and lose much sleep. Do you think she still cares?

WONDERING: Unless you discuss the situation frankly with the young lady, you will be in a perpetual haze. Ask her just what the other suitor means to her and if she has postponed the engagement because of his return. If she refuses to answer, give her, say a week's time, and if she still has no definite opinion, then you will know what it is all about. Don't let the girl just use you as a convenience.

Why Commute?

Why travel back and forth to your employment, which is here in Bristol, when such desirable dwellings are to be obtained here at such reasonable rents? It will pay any individual to investigate!

Work Where You Live and Live Where You Work.

If you are employed in Bristol you should live here. It will be less expensive and there are numerous other advantages derived from making your home in the town where you are employed.

You will save many hours a year which are now spent in traveling and you will have more time with your family.

The saving in money will also be considerable. Add to that which you are now paying for rent the amount which you spend in traveling back and forth to your employment here. You'll be surprised at the total. Rent a house here at a moderate rental and bank the difference.

Houses.

Comfortable dwellings, well situated and at moderate rents are to be found in that portion of Bristol which is immediately adjacent to the P. R. R. passenger station.

These houses make ideal homes and consist of six rooms with bath.

Conveniences.

They are heated by hot-air furnaces with a direct pipe leading to every room. They are lighted with electricity and are equipped with sewer, municipal water and gas.

Each room is well lighted and yet the space devoted to windows is not excessive.

Front porches are another attractive feature as is also a small rear yard where children can play in safety away from the perils of traffic.

Houses such as these would rent for considerably more in any city, where the conveniences would not surpass those offered here.

BROOKLYN ROBINS TO BE ONE OF STRONG CLUBS

This is the third of a series of 16 stories covering 1931 prospects of the National and American Baseball League Clubs.

By Max Kase

(I. N. S. Special Correspondent) CLEARWATER, FLA., Mar. 12—With replacement made at second base and in left field, the Brooklyn Robins will come up to scratch this season one of the strongest clubs ever to represent Flatbush.

The trade at the close of last season which made Robins of Fresco, Thompson and "Lefty" O'Doul and sent Clise Dudley, Jim Elliott and Hal Lee to the Phillies has more than satisfactorily plugged the two outstanding Robins weak spots, which broke their 1930 pennant drive.

Fresco, fast and spry, a sure fielder and a potential 300 hitter dovetails in perfectly alongside the brilliant Glenn Wright in the play around second base.

O'Doul's record speaks for itself. The black-haired Irishman batted .353 last year after leading the league with .385 in 1929. Del Bissonette, fifteen pounds heavier and completely recovered from the mastoid affliction of last season, will be at first. Thompson will get the call at second. Wally Gilbert at third, and Wright at shortstop.

The outfield, a real nightmare and headache to other pitchers in the league, will have O'Doul at left, Johnny Frederick at center, and Babe Herman at right.

The most promising of the recruits is Earnest Lombardi, a catcher, purchased last season from the Oakland Club of the Coast League. Lombardi hit .376 and had a fielding average of .975 last season. One of the interesting experiments in camp is the effort of Robie to salvage some pitching skill from the arms of Joe Shaute, a left hander Cleveland castoff, and Jack Quinn, the Methusalem of the mound.

Watson Clark, who won 13 and lost 13 last season, and Freddy Heimach, former Yankee, are the only two left handers in the pitching lists. Great doings are expected from Dazzy Vance, who although still unsigned, reported weeks in advance of his usual reporting time to work himself in shape.

Ray Moss, recovering from the neuritis, which retarded him last season, has had a boiling out seige at Hot Springs and figures to be one of the most effective of the moundsmen.

Paul Richards, a catcher, Max Rosenfeld, and Murray Howell, right hand hitting outfielders; Al Cohen, a speedy hard hitting left handed outfielder and Bob Reis, an infielder, are some of the other promising rookies.

STATE NEWS

SPRING CITY, Mar. 12.—For the first time in seven years, a valedictorian and a salutatorian will be named from the graduating class of the Spring City high school.

Return from the letter to the numeral work of grading work has permitted finer discrimination between highest ranking students, members of the school board said.

CHARLOTTE, Mar. 12.—Next time Henry Paige, 13, wants "Shep" to sleep in his room, he probably won't have to smuggle the pet shepherd dog into the house.

He did recently. Before retiring, Henry was playing with a toy steam engine, heated by an alcohol flame. Neglecting to extinguish it, the engine set fire to the bedding after the boy retired.

"Shep" awoke, barked lustily and long, and members of the family extinguished the fire before it gained much headway.

WELLSBORO, Mar. 12.—Armory Hall, center of social life here for many years, has all the appearance of a full-fledged courtroom now. The Tioga county court, the sheriff and all stenographers are housed in the hall, pending reconstruction of the courtroom.

SUNBURY, Mar. 12.—A committee has been appointed by the local Kiwanis club to co-operate with the school board in keeping the famed Brosius collection of Indian relics in Sunbury.

Sale of the relics to settle the estate is forecast for the near future and civic bodies here plan to effect a purchase, in order to preserve the collection intact.

Rich in Indian lore, the collection was formed from relics located near Sunbury and through Northumberland county.

JENKINTOWN, Mar. 12.—(INS)—Quaintly preserving its original atmosphere of simplicity and strength amidst the ever-changing modern city, the Abington Friends Meeting house still stands, almost two and a half centuries after its erection.

The meeting house, now used as a home for the caretaker of an estate, was built in 1700, three years after John Barnes donated 10 acres of land and 112 pounds, 15 shillings for the construction and maintenance of a meeting and schoolhouse.

The present east end of the building was added in 1787 and ten years later the west end was torn down and remodelled.

William Penn, founder of the commonwealth, worshipped at the meeting house. For long years it was a school house in which George S. Roberts, one of the best known of old time schoolmasters, presided over classes.

WILKESBARRE, Mar. 11.—Mining operations in the Wyoming Valley worked better during February than during the preceding month, a checkup here reveals. Best improvement was registered by the Glen Alden Coal Company mines, while other mines which had increased operations in January bettered the working time last month.

Sportdom's Biggest Beaks

By HARDIN BURNLEY

ERNIE LOMBARDI---THE ROBINS' NEW CATCHER WHO PROBABLY POSSESSES THE BIGGEST BEAK IN BASEBALL!!

PHYSIOGNOMISTS (experts who read character from the face), Arthur Brisbane, and other profound students of human nature have frequently mentioned the large nose as indicating intelligence, i.e., the development of civilized man from the small, flat-nosed types of our antediluvian ancestry.

Of course, the big beak (called schnozzola in night club and other such erudite circles) is but one sign of civilized intelligence. There are others — as things Vittorio Campolo, Argentine heavyweight, knows. "Vic" has a prominent nasal appendage, which is almost as large as a pro football bag (and oftentimes serves as a weapon).

6-foot-7 helps keep that intellectual nosehook out of punching range at times but when the ugly boys do reach it — well, it must shock the entire mental system of "The Tail Tower of the Andes."

Yep, Camp's brobdagnian beak is almost as big as one of Primo Carnera's puppies! Taken as a sign of civilization that nose certainly affords a tantalizing target for what savants might term the semi-civilized socks of pugilism. If "Vic" could only punch with it, instead of having it punched — he might be champion of the world, nasal philosophers agree.

And now baseball is welcoming almost a major league new-comer who is said to have even a bigger nose than Campolo. Ernesto Lombardo, who will catch for the Brooklyn Robins after a brilliant season with Oakland, noses in as the diamond's Jimmy Durante. When he was a boy, Ernesto loved baseball but his schnozzola was so big that, for self-protection, he had to don a mask and become a catcher. Lombardo hit for .370 and made 22 home-runs last season.

Facing a pitcher, 'tis rumored that "Big Beak" Lombardo can sniff the stuff even off the fast balls before they reach the plate! Ernesto will try to sneeze the zip off "Dazzy" Vance's speedsters! If his timing is correct, Ernesto's nasal air pressure may turn all fast balls into floaters as far as he is concerned.
